Nation's Death Toll Continues Steady Climb

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Traffic	197
Fires	29
Miscellaneous	59
Total	285

Deaths on the nation's highways climbed steadily today as the normal influx of weekend travel added to the flow of Thanksgiving holiday traffic.

The toll mounted to 197 as the four-day extended holiday period passed the halfway mark. Other violent deaths included 29 in fires and 59 in miscellaneous type mishaps for an over-all total of 285.

The National Safety Council says traffic on Thanksgiving is not as heavy as on other major holidays and made no estimate of fatalities for the period. The council has estimated, however, that 407 persons would be killed in traffic during a four-day weekend period at this time of year.

This year's total was running only slightly behind the total counted during an Associated Press survey period covering the 10 hours from 7 p. m. Wednesday Nov. 9 and midnight Sunday, Nov. 13. The figures for that period were 433 traffic deaths, 9 fire deaths and 144 in other accidents for a total of 4.

During last year's similar Thanksgiving holiday period the AP counted 448 traffic deaths, 70 dead in fires and 135 in miscellaneous accidents for a total of 50.

U.S. Seeking Help to Cut Flow of Gold

LONDON (AP)—A U.S. economic mission today sought British aid in stopping the global drain on American gold resources after meeting with a rebuff from West Germany.

Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson and Undersecretary of State Douglas Dillon hustled in from Paris and at once conferred with senior members of the British Cabinet.

They advised Chancellor of the Exchequer John Selwyn Lloyd and Foreign Secretary Lord Home of the failure of their attempt to win direct financial support from West Germany for the upkeep of U.S. forces there.

They also ranged over ways in which Britain could help counter the threat to the American economy.

Those talks, the governor of the Bank of England, Lord Cobden, was a surprise participant.

A British-American exchange was arranged also on political and strategic affairs of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The U.S. vice-president elect, Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, and Sen. William Fulbright, D-Ark. were seeing Lord Home and Prime Minister Harold Macmillan in the day.

Both the senators are expected to play key roles in President-elect John F. Kennedy's incoming Democratic administration.

Soviet-China Fuss Could Start a War

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press News Analyst

Here is an ominous aspect of the Soviet-Red Chinese quarrel: It could result in World War III, and Moscow seems to be preparing for the possibility.

Soviet propaganda makes much of the term peace, but at the same time it seems to be actively conditioning the minds of people in Red-ruled lands for the possibility of a preventive war against the United States.

The suspicion is reinforced by the statement of Premier Khrushchev Wednesday to Pravda on the subject of disarmament. Historically, Communist leaders have accused others of planning what, in fact, has been in their own minds.

Khrushchev accused the West of duplicity in disarmament talks, of steadily building up nuclear weapons stockpiles and of constant provocations and spying against the U.S.S.R. All this, said Khrushchev, could enable the United States to "choose the suitable moment for dealing their blow and starting an aggression."

Taken by itself, this might not appear too menacing. But this sort of thing has been publicized time and again by Soviet propaganda ever since late May, when Khrushchev, using the U2 plane incident as his excuse, was preparing to blow up the Paris summit conference.

Since then Khrushchev has given the impression that the appearance of a single U.S. plane or submarine in Soviet air or waters will be considered a military invasion—in a word, an aggression which could be answered with a big preventive blow.

Some Western experts express belief the Kremlin is engaged in a psychological buildup to justify a preventive attack should that, to the Kremlin's way of thinking, become necessary.

In Munich, Germany, experts of the institute for study of the U.S.S.R. say they detect such a trend. Hammering propaganda for six months has been keyed to an anti-Soviet mania, to hatred and distrust of Americans, to picturing the United States and West Germany, in that order, as real and present enemies to the Soviet population.

One method of psychological buildup, says the institute, is an attempt to reproduce in Russia the mood of World War II, through glorification of the armed forces and constant appeals for vigilance and defense readiness.

Red China insists upon the letter of Leninist dogma: That war between the two world camps must come. The Chinese say it must not be feared, that Communists must not hesitate, regardless of risks, to expand at every opportunity.

Manifestly, this worries Khrushchev, who has contended that while communism would win, there would be little left after nuclear war on either side.

Khrushchev could lose the argument and be toppled in favor of a group more receptive to the Chinese idea. Desperation could lead to that, if an entrenched hierarchy should see in the developing argument a real threat to its continued sway over the Soviet Union and the world Communist movement.

Khrushchev has played for time, and won some time in the Communist summit which began Nov. 9 in Moscow. He is still on a spot. The dissidents—Red Chinese and those agreeing with them—will watch carefully as Khrushchev approaches the new U.S. administration.

Beat His Car to Pieces

LONDON (AP)—Anthony Watts was 90 miles from home on a wet and windy night when his 24-year-old automobile coughed and spluttered to a halt.

Angrily he grabbed a hammer from the tool kit and broke the car into bits. On a piece of battered bodywork he scribbled a farewell note: "Take it easy—but take it."

Police found the wreckage next morning along a 10-mile stretch of the fordshire highway. They traced the owner through the license plates.

Watts was hauled into court at Solihull Thursday for violating the 1958 litter act and fined 5 pounds ($14).

Truce Called by Congo Opponents

ELISABETHVILLE, the Congo (AP)—The feuding Congo central government and the bosses of the breakaway province of Katanga today called a truce—and decided to work together on internal problems.

The dramatic turn in relations came after a two-hour meeting between Katanga President Moïse Tshombe and three top ministers of the central government.

A communique issued after the meeting said: "Perfect identity of views was achieved on the program of action to be undertaken in the domain of internal affairs of the former Belgian Congo."

"The meeting was held in a very cordial atmosphere."

Added to this was the possibility of a round-table conference on the future political structure of the Congo in December, probably in Elisabethville.

Prosecution Ends Murder Trial

CAIRO, Ill. (AP)—The prosecution winds up its case today in the murder trial of George Garner and Ted Crowley.

Garner, 38, a coin machine distributor and one-time Arkansas prisoner, and Crowley, 53, a hotel operator, are charged with the slaying of Juke Rubin in his Latimer Quarter night club March 25.

During a holiday session of the trial Thursday, several persons testified there was no struggle between Rubin and Garner for a gun Garner had with which Rubin was killed.

The main prosecution witnesses were either employees of the club or persons in it at the time of the shooting.

Some police officers also described the arrests of Garner and Crowley.

Despite the holiday, the courtroom was crowded with more than 250 spectators.

Pro-Reds March on Laos Capital

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—The Luang Prabang radio reported today a combined force of government and pro-Communist Pathet Lao soldiers is marching on the royal Laotian capital whose garrison defected two weeks ago to rightist rebel Gen. Phoumi Nosavan.

The attacking force is made up of two infantry companies loyal to the neutralist government of Premier Prince Savanva Phouma, four companies of Pathet Lao, the radio said.

Luang Prabang is the seat of King Savang Vatthana, who has never taken sides in Laos' three-cornered civil war.

Says Strikes Outlived Usefulness

NEW YORK (AP)—A church-sponsored inquiry concluded today that last winter's 116-day steel strike forestalled an end of the usefulness of work stoppages in America.

"It seems clear enough," said the report, "that our society, in maintaining the basic strike, has advanced to the point where work stoppages will increasingly be felt to have outlived their usefulness."

The report was drawn up by a special 17-member committee headed by Charles P. Taft, of Cincinnati, chairman of the department of the church and economic life of the National Council of Churches.

The study group, first of its kind sponsored by a major church organization, spent several months investigating the ethical issues posed by the "drawn-out, costly steel strike of late 1959 and early 1960."

Its members included businessmen and economists, as well as clerical leaders.

The report cites "bigness" and its accompanying concentration of power in "big business" and "big labor" as a dominant factor in making such a damaging strike possible and says:

"Viewed realistically we have muddled through another major steel crisis with no clear resolution of the basic issues... a long and costly strike that, by any measure, was not worth its cost to anybody except as the experience may provide a basis for more constructive action by thoughtful men."

Reviewing causes of the strike—the company claims of inflation if higher wages were accorded, and union protests over work rule changes—the report says:

"Experience in this dispute highlights a growing concern that collective bargaining, as we know it, can prove to be an inadequate instrument for the solution of this kind of public interest dispute."

The Rev. Cameron P. Hall, executive director of the council's economic-life department, said the report is not to be construed as an official statement of the council, but as a document for study.

The council includes most major Protestant and orthodox denominations.

September Good Month for Babies

WASHINGTON (AP)—More babies were born in the United States in September 1960 than in any previous September, the Public Health Service reported today.

This made two successive record months. The August total also had exceeded that for any previous August, reversing what had been a 12-month downward trend.

There were an estimated 385,000 registered births during September, the National Office of Vital Statistics said. This was 3.5 percent more than the 372,000 for September 1959.

In August, births numbered an estimated 399,000, or 4.50 percent more than the 382,000 in August 1959.

Leaders Are Worried Over Rift in Africa

By TOM HOGE

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—African leaders at the United Nations deeply concerned over the rift in their 25-nation group that flared into the open on two fronts this week.

It was a week that saw neighboring nations from the Dark Continent denounce each other as lackeys in the Congo debate and swap charges of imperialism during the discussion of Mauritania's independence.

When 16 new African states joined the U.N. family this fall bringing the bloc's voting strength to 25, diplomats looked on it as a formidable force. Both the Soviet Union and the West began making overtures to win support from the Africans.

This week's bitter clashes prompted predictions, however, that the Africans will be divided on most issues.

Differences between African states of varying political backgrounds are deep-seated and complex, but the current feud apparently was started by the power struggle between Joseph Kasavubu, West-supported Congo president, and Patrice Lumumba, Soviet-backed ex-premier.

The dispute has been simmering for weeks in closed door meetings of the African group. It boiled over early this week when the assembly neared the vote which won Kasavubu the Congo's empty U.N. seat.

Charles Okala, outspoken foreign minister of the newly independent Cameroon, accused Ghana of working with the Soviet Union to set up a Communist regime in the Congo.

Ghana Ambassador Alex Quins-Sackey, considered by some a spokesman of the African group, countered that Okala was acting in bad taste and was guilty of "unparliamentary behavior."

African delegates became embroiled in another angry exchange in the political committee debating a Moroccan protest over Mauritania's accession to independence granted by France.

Fireworks erupted when the French-speaking new nations from Africa banded together against claims that Mauritania belongs to Morocco.

The new state of Upper Volta declared Morocco was having "pipe dreams" about extending its empire.

The United Arab Republic and other Arab countries in Africa countered that the colonialists were trying to carve up Mauritania.

In the Mauritania discussion, Ismael Toure, chief of the Guinea delegation, warned colleagues that any division of the African nations "is a weapon in the hands of our foes."

Army Must Cut Expenses by Dec. 5

WASHINGTON (AP)—Defense Secretary Thomas S. Gates Jr. has given the military services until Dec. 5 to report what they have done toward cutting the number of dependents overseas from 484,000 to 200,000.

Gates also set Dec. 15 as the date by which he will tell the military departments specifically how many families each must return—and how fast.

These actions were contained in a memorandum that formally set both Defense Department instructions on the return of military dependents.

The Pentagon directive followed by nine days the announcement by President Eisenhower that urgent steps would be taken to curb the flow abroad of American dollars, particularly in highly industrialized countries possessing strong currencies. A cutback in overseas civilians with the armed forces was included in the measures.

Gates said Friday he expected military services to comply with the temporary decision to reduce their overseas civilian dependent population at a rate of not less than 15,000 each month and to be prepared to complete the program by July 31, 1962.

Transfer Student at Hope High Not Unusual Except This One Is From Indo China

By MARY ANITA LASHTER

It's not unusual to have a transfer student in Hope High, but when that student has Indo-China as her former address one begins to be more interested.

That was true of this reporter who recently met Frances Ann Smith, an attractive, blonde addition to the Junior Class at HHS. She has moved here from Laos (pronounced LOUSE) in Indo-China where her father is with the State Department. She lives on a farm near Spring Hill, now with her grandmother, Mrs. Millicent Smith.

Ann was born in Baltimore, Md., and has lived in many parts of the U.S. as well as in Germany and the Far East. With a background like that it's small wonder that she has studied French and speaks and understands Laos and German.

What kind of schooling did she have in Laos? Well, in that area there are no schools, and the students take correspondence courses from the University of Nebraska (it's not too many people who have had their sophomore year in high school with instruction from a university.)

It probably has nothing to do with the pronunciation of Laos, but in that land food is anything that crawls. You name it, and if it crawls, the Laotians eat it. That doesn't awaken the appetites of too many Americans, does it?

We usually ask about the climate of a country, and it came as a surprise to me to learn that the hottest time of year over there is our ideal season of spring. That is because it gets very hot before the rains begin, ranging from 90 to 135 degrees. In December and January it may drop to 40 or 50 degrees at night and never goes over 90 in the daytime.

Ann had an exciting trip to this country, when she flew by jet from Thailand to Los Angeles by way of Tokyo, Hong Kong, and Wake Island. She made the trip alone, as her father, mother and sister have remained in Laos.

Many clubs, groups and individuals have been fortunate in having this friendly girl tell them interesting things about "far-away places with the strange sounding names" that she has called home. The Mimosa trees, the flame trees, and the fruit trees in Indo-China are lovely, she relates.

The seventh, eighth and ninth grades for Ann Smith were in Huntsville, Ala., the tenth grade in Laos, and at present she plans to spend her junior and senior years of high school in Hope.

Ann has commented on the friendliness of students at HHS. "That is true, but she must be reminded that she had something to do with it. Only a person who is a friend can have a friend."

She is a member of the French-speaking new nations from Africa banded together against claims that Mauritania belongs to Morocco.

Population in Cities Increase

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Arkansas' cities showed a dramatic population increase in the past 10 years, despite the state's loss of 6.5 per cent of its residents. Final official 1960 census figures released yesterday in Washington show that while the state was losing 123,239 people, 22 of the state's top 23 cities showed healthy gains.

Hot Springs, which dropped from 29,307 in 1950 to 28,337 in 1960, was the only one of the top 23 to show a loss.

The state's official population in the 1960 census is 1,786,272, compared to 1,909,511 in 1950.

The medium-sized cities showed the biggest surge. West Memphis boomed from 9,112 to 19,374 and climbed to 10th place. Jacksonville which wasn't even listed among the top cities in 1950, moved to 16th place with 14,488.

Benton and Magnolia gained 4,000, as did Camden.

Little Rock remains at the top of the population list with 107,813, compared to 102,213 in 1950. North Little Rock ousted Fort Smith for second place. Pine Bluff is fourth, then come Hot Springs, Jell Dondore and Jonesboro.

Asked by newsmen whether he found a loss of U.S. prestige here, Johnson replied: "I am proud to find among our allies the traditional warmth and friendship between us. But I found here a concern for the future—questions about our intentions and purposes."

"It is my hope—and I speak for myself—that the course of American leadership in the 1960s will allay this feeling by new vigor, new vitality and new confidence," he said.

Before leaving for London for talks with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, Johnson called on Paul-Henri Spaak, secretary-general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. He said he had a "very useful and constructive" visit with Spaak.

Johnson said he had just learned of the birth of a boy to President-elect and Mrs. John F. Kennedy.

He said that he hoped the future would develop in such a way "so that this youngster won't be called on to give his life to preserve freedom."

Aides said Johnson will fly back to Washington Saturday.

Russians Expel Another American

LONDON (AP)—Maj. Irving T. McDonald of Provincetown Mass., assistant Air attaché at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow who was expelled by the Russians, passed through London airport today on his way home.

"I have no idea why the Russians should say I was spying," he told newsmen. "At all times my job as thoroughly consistent with my duties as assistant Air attaché."

McDonald, 31, was given 48 hours to get out of the Soviet Union with his wife Dorothy, 33, and two children, Maureen, 9, and Michael, 5.

He was accused of conducting a military attaché and gathering intelligence information. He had been based in Moscow for 19 months.

"Nineteen months in Russia is quite long enough," Mrs. McDonald said.

Hollywood Not Ambition of Actresses

By BOB THOMAS, AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—There was a time when a Hollywood career was the ambition of every actress in the world. No more.

You could cite, for example, Sweden's Gunnel Lindblom, which is not bad citing. She is a lovely, articulate blonde known to American audiences for her roles in Ingmar Bergman classics such as "The Seventh Seal" and "Wild Strawberries."

She was in Hollywood briefly, not to sign a contract but to help publicize a new Bergman film in which she stars "The Virgin Spring." She shuddered at the suggestion of working here.

"It would frighten me," she said. "I don't think I could face it. Yes, I have had offers. But they wanted me to sign a 7-year contract. Seven years! It seems like half a lifetime."

Why would a Hollywood career frighten her? "Because actors have to be so intense about their careers here. I do not want to have my whole life devoted to it. In Sweden, we are able to have our own personal lives. We are not bothered by the public."

"Even Ingrid Bergman can walk the streets of Stockholm and not be approached by people. Oh perhaps two or three girls might ask her for an autograph. But that is all."

If Miss Lindblom's attitude prevails, it could cut Hollywood off from a principal source of talent. Sweden has long contributed bright names to American films: Greta Garbo, Ingrid Bergman, Viveca Lindfors, Signe Hasso, Marta Toren.

Why should one modest-sized country contribute so much talent? Miss Lindblom helped explain: "We have seven civic theaters in Sweden, all state-supported. Two of the theaters have excellent schools for newcomers."

The performers receive a thorough schooling in dramatics, including the classics. Miss Lindblom came up through Ibsen and Strindberg and made her first big hit in "Faust," directed by Ingmar Bergman. She became part of his stock company for films.

The hostess, assisted by co-hostesses Mrs. Loyce Anderson and Mrs. J. L. Coe, served pie and coffee to the seventeen members.

The devotion was given by Mrs. Floyd Wren. Mrs. L. C. Gatlin read the names from the prayer calendar for whom they should pray that day. Mrs. Glenn Hairston reviewed the chapter "A Thousand Paper Cranes" from the supplementary study book "turning World." Mrs. J. W. Teeter viewed "Sowers Together" which is a look at cooperation enterprises of the Women's division of Christian Service. Mrs. P. A. Esch spoke on "Are Missionaries Necessary." The meeting adjourned with the Lord's Prayer prayed

There's some new thinking here in the use of favorite fabrics. Who, for instance, would expect a wool knit to turn up (left) for evening wear? But it has and in a very handsome, slinky sheath that's cut with halter top and fully lined. It's piped in a fine satin that is also used for shoestring tie belt. The costume appears (center) in velvet and with seven-eighths coat. Under front center from the neckline.

Here are just two of many ways to look at home this winter. Corduroy robe (left) has full skirt, deep cuffs, and bodice cut coachman style. For those who will take their robes short, there's this ensemble with an Oriental slant (right). Printed corduroy coat with slit skirt is worn over slim pants which come just to knee. —By GAILE DUGAS, Newspaper Enterprise Women's Editor.

Punch-Card Marriages Trend Now

BY PHYLLIS BATTELLE

NEW YORK (UPI) — The up-and-coming trend in American romance today is marriage by punch-card.

You feed an IBM machine your vital statistics, plus your yearnings, neuroses, politics and prejudices — and it'll give you the name and address of a mate, supposedly an appropriate one.

This scientific spooning, or spouses in more typical ways (through blind dates, school picnic minor auto collisions, and so on), but the experts who run the electronic marriage services insist that the system is highly efficient.

Although the three scientific love centers in the country — there's one also in Canada — still are as new and experimental as puppy love, their claim a number of successful marriages and — so far — no divorces.

In fact Dr. George Cratio, who operates the "scientific marriage foundation" in Melbott, Ind., is convinced that if couples are matched scientifically the national divorce rate could be cut from the current 20 per cent to less than two per cent. Currently, he is matching about 1,500 couples a month.

In New York city, where loneliness is as rampant as ambition, a young lady named Lee Morgan with a master's degree in social research and an electronic computer, operates "scientific introduction service."

In five years of operation, she claims 15 per cent of her scientific introductions have resulted in successful marriages — and the ratio would be much higher except that many people in New York, even when they find the perfect partner, simply do not have the "will to wed."

According to the December "cosmopolitan," which details the work of these mating institutions, there are in the U. S. now 11 million women of marriageable age

World Seems Bleak to Girls of 14

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen:

Last year my school marks were all in the 90's. This year my marks have dropped to the 80's and one is in the 70's. I study just about every chance I get. I think the reason for the drop in my marks is because I was put into an extra fast class.

My mother says my grades are lower because I'm always thinking about boys. I'll admit I like boys but I study and pay attention. My mother also says I've skipped classes before and I haven't. She's always picking on me.

My mother keeps telling me that she doesn't like the way I dress and wear my hair and the way I act. Everything I do to try to please her, she finds something else to yell about. I just don't know what to do. —Troubles

Dear Troubles: Fourteen is a difficult period for a young girl — the beginning of the transition from childhood to womanhood. Everybody will seem out of step but you; boys will assume a growing importance in your life and studies less.

Accept this as a phrase through which you are passing. Realize that boys are not as vital to your happiness as you think. Give more attention to self-improvement and that goes for studies as well as appearance and manners. Gradually everything will fall into its rightful place including your relationship with your family.

and eight million men. The reason the "computer-conjugal" operation is catching on so swiftly is that the above-average individual — with a high I. Q. and culture quotient — both male and female — too busily employed to find a mate to suit his tastes.

It is these above-average folks who have faith in science. Just as this type of individual often is willing to invest in psychoanalysis to discover himself, he is willing to invest in an IBM machine to discover his true love.

Often of course, these people are as difficult to please by scientific methods as they are by purely social acquaintance.

Dr. Karl Miles Wallace, who runs a "service in California, recalls the college professor who demanded the machine find him a girl with all the wonderful qualifications he needed, and she must be a Democrat besides. Or "If a Republican, then an objective Republican, if there is such a thing."

Another expert points out that, however persnickety the client, the machine is the greatest little time and money-saver an unmarried American could ask for. "If comprehensive files of physical psychological data were collected on all of us, and the time came for John Jones to look for a potential wife, all he would have to do is to throw his name into the central sorting machine. A technician could push a button, and very quickly John would have the names, addresses and phone numbers of girls who might be attractive to him and who also might find him eligible. With a minimum of time, energy and money."

Well, it all seems very reasonable. And maybe that's what love should be. Moonlight just gets you all mixed up.

Only thing is, I wonder if the IBM for love before marriage? won't be outdated before it really gets going.

Surely they'll invent a pill that will make every man suitably perfect for every woman. Sugar-coated suitability...

Patronage Back in Hands of Democrats

WASHINGTON (AP)—After Sen. John F. Kennedy becomes president Jan. 20 Arkansas members of Congress will assume once again—reluctantly or otherwise—the job of handling federal patronage for their state.

It's been nearly eight years since they've had any patronage powers over federal jobs in the state. Under the Eisenhower administration, Republican leaders in the state were in the saddle.

Most members of Congress look upon federal patronage with a mixed feelings—it's nice to have the right to pick people for jobs but, on the other hand, a lot of headaches are involved.

Sometimes a member finds himself in the middle of a local row relationship with your family.

Dear Helen:

I am soon to be 18. My mother divorced my father when I was quite young. Her second marriage hasn't been any more successful than her first but she has three children by this husband and won't divorce because of them.

Seeing her mistake she doesn't want me to make the same. Mother forbids me to go to slumber parties, date, or attend games at school. I just can't stand it any longer. I'm not asking for the whole world, only a little freedom. Yet, I don't want to hurt Mother who has gone through so much already. Help me. —Hopeless

Dear Hopeless: Tell your Mother that she can no more protect you from life than she can halt the stars in their course, however loving she may be. At 18, you should be well-enough grounded morally to meet life in its various aspects. Slumber parties, dates and school games are only minor aspects of a big canvas. To get the most out of life you must have a sense of values and know where you are going. Be purposeful!

Dear Helen:

I am 15 and in love with a boy 19. In high school he was wild. But now that he has changed no one including my parents will give him a chance. He is moving away. His parents want me to visit them during my Christmas vacation. My parents do not want me to. If I never see my boy friend I'll be miserable. If I do how could things work out?

—Troubled Teenager

Dear Troubled Teenager: You're young to be taking love so seriously. Perhaps that is what worries your parents. Are they and your boy friend's father and mother acquainted? If not bring them together. Once mutual confidence is established your parents may be more agreeable to the continuance of this friendship. It might help if the boy's mother wrote your mother about the Christmas plans.

Send your problem to Helen Worden Erskine. Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope and address her care of this newspaper. Helpful leaflets available. Write for "Philander."

over a postmaster appointment, for instance, and can scarcely avoid offending one side or the other.

Nearly as soon as the election results pointed to victory for Kennedy, applications and requests began arriving at Democratic Congressional offices. More looked for as it dawned on local Democrats that once again federal jobs will be available to them.

While most federal jobs are under civil service and thus not subject to changes in the presidency, others are at the disposal of the party in power.

The postal service is one source for many jobs. However, most of these are under civil service and jobs are available as postmaster and rural route carriers only as vacancies arise.

This is not to say that postmasters now in office can't be removed. They can be removed for cause — as the Republicans demonstrated in many cities in the early years of the Eisenhower regime.

When Congress quit last summer it left dangling 13 postmaster appointments in Arkansas — that is, it failed to confirm Eisenhower appointees. These jobs now will be available for Democrats.

These vacancies are at Batesville, Charleston, De Witt, Hazen, Imboden, Luxora, Magazine, North Little Rock, Pea Ridge, Piggott, St. Joe, Sulphur Mills and Strawberry.

Also available for Democrats will be many jobs in Washington on the high administrative level — jobs in the various departments and agencies not under civil service.

There also will be good administrative jobs in regional and state offices of the various departments and agencies, including various agencies in the Agriculture Department, the Labor Department, Housing and Home Finance, General Services Administration and many others.

And there will be U.S. district attorney and U.S. marshal jobs together with the aides for those offices.

There is the possibility, too, that a new federal judgeship will be created for Arkansas.

Democrats in Congress have held up for several years any omnibus bill creating new federal judgeships throughout the country, gambling that they might regain control of the White House this year. So a new bill likely will be pushed through next year.

Such a bill might provide a new judge for the 8th federal circuit and a new district judgeship for Arkansas.

Representatives fill the postal jobs. That is, they have the right to make the recommendations. On postmasterships, where a civil service examination is involved, they can recommend one of the three top applicants, or if a man is to be promoted within the office, they can make the recommendation.

Applicants for various jobs already are coming in and Arkansas has members of congress who have to wrestle with the problem beginning at once.

HOLD ON

How we love to watch these trapeze artists perform! We watch them in amazement, though feeling some peril in their doings. We can almost hear the crowd say "Hold On!" It is a parable of you and me. God is the strong member of the team. We live every day in peril and difficulty... we hang from His hand.

We must hold to the hand of God if we win. Prayer is our aid to keep his hand in ours. We read The Book and attend His church for courage and strength. But a closer look will give us hope. We are "holding on" to God but better still God is "holding on" to us.

God does not faint or grow weary. Then "hold on" to Him, for "He shall renew thy strength."
